“Without great graphics illustrating the story, the student or user is left to use their imagination in visualizing what the instructor is asking them to learn.”

GRAPHICS DEVELOPMENT

The heart and soul of any courseware development company is their graphics department. Without great graphics illustrating the story, the student or user is left to use their imagination in visualizing what the instructor is asking them to learn. DPA has been creating instructive and effective graphics in courseware for over 20 years. As technologies have changed over the years so have the increased abilities of DPA, now offering 3D talking characters, creative winning proposal graphics, highly realistic scenes and animations, desktop publishing, poster design, trade show graphics, digital video and audio and much more. Our design philosophy is simple: Listen to what the customer wants, design to cost and still make it creative.
